Convener, EyiEko Foundation

I am a technology and impact entrepreneur, the founder of Utiva. I built the largest tech learning company on the continent with over 90,000 people and clients among the biggest global brands.

As a tech entrepreneur, I am popularly celebrated as the 'Tech and Web3 Evangelist'. Helping Africans move into future skills and helping companies from anywhere in the world hire smart talents.

I am a 2020 Facebook Community Leader, an Antler Entrepreneur, a 2020 Halcyon Incubator Fellow in the US, a 2019 Global Good Funds Fellow (United States); a 2018 Chevening Scholar (Funded by the UK Government); a 2016 Atlas Corps Fellow (United States), 2019 Unleash Talent (Shenzhen, China), 2015 NLI Associate Fellow, 2014 Carrington Youth Fellow.

In my pre-entrepreneurial life, I worked with CreativeDC in the US as a product manager and moved to work with Afrissance as a Vice President in charge of Product & Partnership. I also consulted for the Royal Bank of Scotland on Change Management. I also studied Business Strategy and Change at Edinburgh Business School as a Chevening Scholar and consults as an AI Product Manager.
